LOGAN city kids put their imaginations to the test these school holidays at a free workshop at Logan North Library.

The workshop, run by author and illustrator Cameron Stelzer, was held on Wednesday.

Mr Stelzer based activities on his Stroogle books, and gave kids an insight into creating and illustrating fictional characters.

For younger children aged five to eight, he hosted story reading and colour activities, followed by a create-a-creature workshop for ages seven to 10.

Kids aged nine and above participated in an animal illustration workshop.

Mr Stelzer will host workshops at the Logan Hyperdome Library on January 18 phone 3412 4120, and Logan West Library on January 20 phone 3412 4160. Bookings essential.
